Public Input Sought for Indian Creek Watershed Restoration

WALDPORT, Ore. – The Siuslaw National Forest is soliciting input on a proposed restoration project within the 30,800-acre Indian Creek Watershed near Florence.

The public is invited to learn more about the project and provide comments during a meeting at 6 p.m. on March 10 at Mapleton School.

This is the second public meeting on the project and it will address questions and concerns identified by the public after the first public meeting on Jan. 21. Forest Service staff will make presentations about the project and will be available to answer questions and address concerns raised by attending members of the public.

The Indian Creek Landscape Management Project would be located about 14 miles northeast of Florence. Project objectives include diversifying habitat within younger stands of trees, accelerating old-growth forest habitat characteristics and improving aquatic habitat for salmon and other riparian species.

Individuals interested in the project are encouraged to become involved in the planning process. Public comments are useful in shaping the final project design, as well as formulating proposed alternative actions.

The scoping letter, which contains a more detailed description of the project, is available under the Land and Resource Management section of the agency's website – fs.usda.gov/siuslaw.

If unable to attend the meeting, members of the public can submit comments to Michele Jones – District Ranger, c/o Donni Vogel, P.O. Box 400, Waldport, OR 97394.

Email comments can be sent to comments-pacificnorthwest-siuslaw-centralcoast@fs.fed.us; include Indian Creek Landscape Management Project in the subject line.

“We'd like as many interested people involved as possible during the planning phase of this project, especially during this initial scoping period,” said Vogel, project coordinator and Central Coast Ranger District Natural Resources and Planning staff officer. “Comments on the proposed actions will assist us in identifying issues and give us the opportunity to develop possible alternative actions.”

Scoping comments will be considered in the draft environmental assessment that will be open for comment prior to a final decision. Project implementation could start as early as spring 2017.

Ambassadors for Animals Wanted

NEWPORT, Ore. – Otters, octopuses and auklets have wonderful stories, but cannot speak for themselves. At the Oregon Coast Aquarium, these animals rely on interpretive volunteers to connect them with more than 400,000 visitors each year.

To ensure these natural history experts know their subjects, the aquarium treats new volunteers to a six-weekend crash course, offered just twice a year, on the coastal and marine fauna of Oregon.

Upon graduation, volunteers spend a few hours each week speaking on behalf of the Oregon Coast's animals and their habitats.

"Volunteers connect with visitors every day about animals and conservation issues like marine debris. The in-depth insights they share not only add to the aquarium experience, they can make impressions that last a lifetime," said Beth Hawkyard, volunteer services manager for the aquarium.

In addition to soaking in stunning exhibit scenery each week, volunteers receive:

- ✓ Complimentary aquarium membership
- ✓ Invitations to participate in exclusive lectures and continuing education programs
- ✓ A behind-the-scenes look at a marine science exhibition facility that is consistently ranked among the 10 best in the U.S.
- ✓ Subscription to the newsletter, The Upwelling
- ✓ Discounts at the Wildlife Trading Company gift shops
- ✓ The opportunity to join ranks with more than 400 other outstanding volunteers who share a passion for marine science

To become one of the newest voices for Oregon's marine and coastal animals, fill out an online application at bit.ly/aquavol. Applications are due by March 21.

For more information, visit aquarium.org or contact the aquarium's Volunteer Services department at volunteer@aquarium.org.
